I find it hard to believe that the current settlement benefits American Citizens. After all, Microsoft now has an opportunity to continue with their practices of restricting competitive software and they now can market their own software in school systems across America. The school systems in which they would be giving computers/software to, would have to eventually upgrade their operating system. Is this the spirit of competition????? No! Please be bold and strong in your stance against Microsoft. I must say that I do use widow applications, however, I also use Apple, Unix, and Lenox. I find it hard to believe that this settlement has accomplished anything, except what Microsoft wanted!!!!

Sincerely,
Chad
